Hi. Welcome to the big belch news. It's a sad day for us here because that idiot Obama won. How in the hell could people be so stupid as to vote for him? We tried to warn you not to vote for him with sporadic messages in various issues, but since nobody really read them, I guess they didn't know. So it's not your fault. But really people. You know what I think? I think our votes don't matter. I believe that the new world order picks who's gonna be the president. If the votes were actually counted in 2008, McCain would have been president. They just toss the votes in the fire and they themselves vote amongst themselves, then laugh as they had led us all to believe that our votes actually mattered. Well, anyway, I want to say congratulations to Mitt Romney anyway because like it or not, he actually received more votes than Obama. But the mainstream media will never know since they are in the sack for Obama. They are delighted because they have already known that Obama was going to win, now they can report it. Which is too bad, since Romney seemed like a nice guy. I think he would have made a great president. But that's not the direction the new world order wants to take. They don't want to save America, they want to destroy it. Luckily for me, I think I'm smart enough to learn Arabic, that is, if they ever take us over. But I don't know what language to learn next because China might take us over, too. So I guess I'll wait and see. I guess people are really better off now than they were four years ago. They like to pay more for gas. They like to destroy America. I guess now we'll just have to wait and see how long it takes for the new world order to destroy it. But all in all, I think this BC comic strip hits the nail on the head when it comes to politics:

You know another thing that's wrong with this stupid country? You have to ask for permission to use stuff even if you're not using it for monetary gain. For example: Why bother getting permission to use that BC comic strip if I don't make any money off of making these stupid newsletters? It's like all that stuff I put on YouTube. If I don't click the box that says I'd like to profit off what I put on there, then the companies shouldn't have to care whether I use their stuff because A: They're not losing money, and B: I'm not making money. I guess it's stupidity on their part and even the unfounded fear of losing money is enough to warrant all this crap about me putting TV shows on YouTube, because we all know that everyone is greedy. See what greed does? It robs people of fun. It is a deadly sin because now I feel like wanting to shoot myself in the head. Sorry. I'm still all worked up about Obama winning.

I'm Chris Read and I approve this message.

Why do you suppose it is that Election Day is the only holiday where we're glad it's over? It's not like Christmas stuff doesn't start way early. In fact, it should start about right now. I guess it's because we get presents on Christmas. And the kids get presents on Halloween: candy. And us adults get a present on Election Day, too: a ballot. Then you fill that thing in and the opposite of what you vote for happens. Why do you suppose that is? That it's always who you DON'T vote for gets elected? Maybe Election Day and opposite day is the same day. Maybe it's a giant conspiracy. Maybe I should start voting the opposite of what I want to happen. Maybe if I vote Democratic in 2016, a Republican will win the presidency. But that's the only present we get on Election Day. All the other holidays we get candy. Maybe that's why we're Glad election day is over: We don't get candy.
