

the

big BELCH NEWS

issue 42 ☞ march 13, 2013

hi, welcome to another exciting edition of big belch news. OK, it may not be exciting at all. It may reek of boredom. I don't know, I've just begun writing it. I don't really know what I'm going to write yet. So if it is boring, I'm sorry. If it is so exciting you pee your pants, I'm sorry for that too, because doing laundry sucks. especially if you're going to the Laundromat, and some guy comes up to you and asks "hey, why do you have a big wet spot on the crotch of your pants," and you have to reply "big belch news." And he'll think you're crazy because he's never heard of big belch news before. In fact, if you're going to the Laundromat, print out an extra copy of big belch news so someone will have something to read. Another exciting place to lay a copy of big belch news is the waiting room at the doctor's office. And while you're laughing hysterically, some nurse will come along, think you're insane, and take you to the mental hospital. Better do this at the dentist's office instead, so they'll think you got too much laughing gas. Or they might think there's a laughing gas leak and they'll have to evacuate the building, in which case you probably won't see the dentist and you can go home. And if they call to reschedule, just say "I don't care about my teeth." That way you'll never have to go to the dentist ever again. Dentistry is just another word for quackery anyway. Everyone knows that teeth don't matter. It's what's in your heart that matters. ♥

---

Way back in issue 2, we had a five second song. I said I hoped to have many, but since then, I've had zero. So in opposite land, I was correct. Here's another five-second song.

---

"A 94¢ Strip of Bacon"

By Chris Read

Poet tree
“it bugs me.”

I ate many an insect
Yep you read that correct Bug eating is what I am in
If I get bug legs on my chin
I use a napkin
And then eat it.

Well, it's spring. And that means that bugs are beginning to crawl out from wherever they go in the winter and they come out and hurt us. Well, the wasps and bees and hornets hurt us. Other insects, like ants, while they can't hurt us, can be very annoying. Well, I guess carpenter ants and termites can be destructive and eat your house. But other types of ants as well as most insects, serve no purpose whatsoever. Think about it. What eats ants? An aardvark. What eats aardvarks? Lions. What eats lions? See, the purpose stops there. Lions serve no purpose, neither do aardvarks, and neither do ants. This is fun let's try this again. What eats centipedes? Birds. What eats birds? Hawks. What eats hawks? Coyotes. What do coyotes eat? Roadrunners. What do roadrunners eat?

Centipedes. So, I've denied the usefulness of lions, ants, centipedes, birds, hawks, coyotes, and roadrunners.

Hey! I do serve a purpose!
/

While they can be ferocious and maneating, lions serve no purpose on earth.

And the days get longer and the clouds burn off because the sun is closer to our part of the earth and then before you know it summer is here. And that means kids are let out of school. And they will be mean and laugh at me when I go out in public. Poor fat me. But do you know what kids' purposes are? To take care of us geezers. Sure, kids, go ahead and laugh now, but 30 years from now, you'll be putting on our geezer diapers and feeding us and touching our poop. And it won't be fun. And I do poop a lot.

© 2013, chris read.