attack of the huge spider
by chris read

1 It was a dark and stormy night.

“Joel, time for bed,” Joel’s mom said.

“Be there in a sec,” Joel replied. He just finished reading a book about icky bugs. Very gross and disgusting bugs. Ones that spit lava at you if you say “foo” to them. But there weren’t any about spiders. Black widow spiders. Joel went upstairs and went to sleep.

“Good night, mom,” Joel said.

“Good night, Joel,” said mom.

2 At midnight there was a big thump noise that woke Joel up. Thump thump!

“Oh, that’s just the lightning,” Joel said. He looked out the window. The thunder stopped. It was now drizzling. Joel started to worry. “Mom?! Dad?!” Joel said in panic. But they all got eaten by the creature that was climbing up the stairs.

3 It was coming closer. Joel was growing more worried. Then there was a big thump thump at the door. Then the spider knocked down the door. It was coming towards him. Growling and showing its very razor sharp sharp teeth. It could cut a piece of metal in one nibble. Saying “I’ll eat you. I’ll eat you,” in the deepest voice in the world. Joel screamed the loudest scream he ever screamed. Then the spider ate him. There was blood everywhere.

4 Then the spider ate the house. Everyone watched as the huge spider ate the neighbors' house. And their neighbors' house. There was nothing anybody can do. Except watch. In horror. Soon they heard sirens wailing. It was the police.

“Stop!” and they shot at the spider. Blood was starting to come out of the hairy thing. Then they all watched as Mom came out one of the holes in the biggest spider in the world. She was all drenched in blood.

“Eeeew!!!” Everyone screamed.

The spider ate another person. Soon the spider fell to the ground, breaking three or four houses.

“Yay!” everyone screamed. The spider was finally dead.

5 “That was the most scariest book I have ever read,” said Jim.

“Yup,” Jim's little brither, Jason, said. He was too scared to say anything else.

“Maybe I'll read it to you again someday,” Jim said.

“No!” replied Jason.

“Don't worry, Jason, it's a book. It's all imaginary,” said Jim.

“Good night, guys,” said mom.

“Good night,” said Jim and Jason.

Now you might expect a big huge spider to come and eat them, right? Well, you're wrong.

8

It was a big huge spider. It was walking down the street devouring people one by one. Suddenly, it came to the school. The l on the sign got stepped on so the sign now read “Booger Elementary School.” It walked into the office.

“I’m here to pick up my kid,” said the big, huge, hairy spider.

“What’s its name?” asked the office lady.

“Anita Bath,” the spider replied.

Then on the loudspeaker they heard the office lady say “Anita Bath, come to the office please,” Silence. “Does anyone know Anita Bath?” The spider chuckled.

“Just kidding. Actually, I’m here to eat you,” said the spider.

Then the spider ate the office lady. Then it went into the library. It ate every book in sight. Then it went into Jim’s class.

“Big spider!” Everyone yelled.

“I know what you’re gonna do,” said the teacher. “When I look you’re gonna say ‘Monkeys always loo-ook!’”

“No, I’m serious!” Jim said, “There really is a big spider!” The teacher looked.

“Oh, you’re right,” Then she turned around. Then she realized “Big spider?!? AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA!”

The spider ate her. Then she ate Rick, Don, Sam, Jill, Mary, John and the donkey. It spit out the donkey. Then it went outside. The rest of the class sighed in relief. “That was a close one,” Jim said. Then the spider ate the whole school. Then the world ended.
